K!DZ Pop Con Asia 2026 lands at Sands Expo & Convention Centre this weekend, 23 and 24 May, from 10am to 8pm both days. With Bluey, Baby Shark and 50+ family-friendly brands all under one roof, this is the parent-coded plan for the weekend.

Tickets sit between S$10 and S$88 depending on tier â?? and yes, queues are already forming.

What To Expect At K!DZ Pop Con Asia 2026

The headline acts are clear:

- Bluey Live Experience â?? a live stage show with episode screenings, meet-and-greets with Bluey and Bingo, the biggest Bluey inflatable playground in Singapore, plus a colouring activity and art wall
- Pinkfong Baby Shark Bounce Wonderland â?? making its Singapore debut with 14 inflatables for jumping, sliding and bouncing
- Syrena Singapore Mermaid â?? meet-and-greet appearances with her pod across both days

The Wider Programme

The event runs over 50 booths and a packed stage schedule:

- Musical performances and live demos through the day
- Hands-on workshops including NTUC First Campusâ?? learning experiences
- Mascot parades through the floor
- Pop-up bouncy castles for the under-eight set

The Cosplay Contest

The K!DZ Cosplay Competition takes the Main Stage at 3pm on Sunday 24 May. Prizes are on the table â?? and the entry tradition usually skews younger and more wholesome than the usual con crowd.

Ticket Strategy

Family tickets and weekend bundles offer the cleanest savings. If you only want one day, Saturday is heavier on the Baby Shark side and Sunday closes with the cosplay show.

Either way, go early. The inflatables get queue-heavy after 11am, especially the Baby Shark Bounce Wonderland.

Getting There

- MRT: Bayfront on the Circle and Downtown Lines
- Drive: Marina Bay Sands carpark â?? pre-book to lock in capped rates
- Tip: enter via the Sands Expo entrance, not the casino lobby
