

Brentford 4-0 Everton: Lewis-Potter double and Tarkowski red card spoil Moyesâ??s record night

Description

default watermark

Keane Lewis-Potter scored twice in two minutes and Brentford beat 10-man Everton 4-0 at the Gtech Community Stadium on Monday night, a result that lifts the Bees to sixth in the Premier League. The game kicked off at 4am on Tuesday in Singapore, and it spoilt what was meant to be a milestone evening for David Moyes.

Kiernan Dewsbury-Hall in action for Everton at Brentford on 23 November 2026. Photo: Everton FC

Two deflections, then a red card

Brentford went into the game without Igor Thiago, who is serving a three-match ban after his red card at Brighton, so Keith Andrews started Callum Wilson up front. In the end it was Lewis-Potter, deployed at left-back, who settled it.

On 23 minutes Jaidon Anthony picked out his run into the box and the finish took a heavy deflection off Jarrad Branthwaite to beat Jordan Pickford. Two minutes later Lewis-Potterâ??s first shot was blocked by James Tarkowski, the ball came straight back to him, and his second effort spun in off Thierno Barry. Two goals, two deflections, and Everton were still struggling to get going.

Worse followed five minutes before half-time. Tarkowski slid into Yehor Yarmoliuk, and referee Craig Pawson first showed the Everton captain a yellow card. After a VAR review at the pitchside monitor, the card became red for violent conduct.

Everton did have one way back into the game. Seconds before the break, Kiernan Dewsbury-Hall chipped in a cross and Barry headed towards the bottom corner, only for CaoimhÃn Kelleher to claw the ball away.

default watermark

Janeltâ??s strike ends the argument

Moyes sent on Jack Grealish at half-time, and his low ball across the six-yard box only just evaded Barry. That was as close as Everton came. On 67 minutes Vitaly Janelt, also set up by Anthony, hit a long-range shot into the top corner, and in the dying moments substitute FÃ¡bio Carvalho bundled a corner over the line from a yard out with his knee.

Monday was Moyesâ??s 593rd game in charge of Everton, more than any other manager in the clubâ??s history. It was not the night he would have chosen to mark it.

Where it leaves the table

Brentford move to 17 points from 11 games, level with Leeds United but ahead on goal difference, nine against Leedsâ??s five, and one point behind fifth-placed Bournemouth. Andrewsâ??s side have lost only two league games all season.

Everton stay on 16 points in ninth, with a goal difference of minus two. Before the international break they had won their last two league games, 1-0 at Newcastle and 3-1 at home to Coventry City.

Arsenal remain top on 28 points, six clear of Brighton and Manchester City.

What comes next

The fixtures do not get gentler for either side. Brentford go to Old Trafford to face Manchester United on Saturday 28 November, an 11pm kick-off in Singapore, then host Arsenal on Wednesday 2 December and Manchester City on Saturday 5 December. Thiago remains suspended for the trip to United and the Arsenal game.

Evertonâ??s next game is the Merseyside derby against Liverpool at the Hill Dickinson Stadium on Sunday 29 November, kicking off at 8pm Singapore time, before a trip to Aston Villa on 2 December.

Date Created
24/11/2026
Author
jadeyeo

default watermark