The McDonaldâ??s Maple BBQ burger Singapore launch starts on 26 November 2026, with meals from S$10.05 for the single Maple BBQ Quarter Pounder with Cheese. Hamburglar is back to front the festive run, with menu items inspired by McDonaldâ??s in Canada, China, Japan and Australia. There is also limited-edition merch, and some of it needs you to be quick.

Here is the lineup, the prices reported so far and the dates to note.

McDonaldâ??s Maple BBQ burger Singapore: the two new burgers

The headline item is the Maple BBQ Quarter Pounder with Cheese, inspired by McDonaldâ??s Canada. Beef patties come with crispy chicken bacon, fried onions and smoky-sweet maple BBQ sauce. It comes in single and double patty versions.

- Maple BBQ Quarter Pounder with Cheese meal: from S$10.05 (single) and S$12.90 (double)
- Maple BBQ Chicken Burger meal: from S$10.50 (single) and S$12.80 (double)

The chicken version swaps the beef for crispy chicken, still with the chicken bacon and maple BBQ sauce. Both burgers are sold after breakfast hours at restaurants islandwide, at Drive-Thrus and on McDelivery, GrabFood, foodpanda and Deliveroo.

New sides, drinks and desserts

The other international picks are smaller, and cheaper to try on the side:

- Szechuan Sauce (China): a mildly spicy dip with peppercorn notes, S$0.70 per tub, for McNuggets or fries
- Sakura McFizz (Japan): a pink, floral fizzy drink, from S$3.65

- Pistachio McPops: a chocolate pastry with a creamy pistachio centre, from S$2.95 for two pieces
- Biscoff McPops (Australia): pastry with a Biscoff filling, also from S$2.95 for two pieces

McDonaldâ??s Singapore also lists Crinkle Cut Fries on the Hamburglar menu page.

For dessert, the Popcorn Caramel range combines ice cream with caramel and toasted popcorn flavours. You can get it as a Twist Cone, ChocoCone, sundae with hot fudge or strawberry sauce, or a McFlurry with OREO bits. McDonaldâ??s says the cone is available after breakfast hours and while stocks last.

Hamburglar merch and meet and greets

Merch is the part to be kiasu about. Both items are sold with any meal purchase, including Happy Meals, and the T&Cs say stocks are limited.

- Tee bundle (one Master and one Mini): S$28.80, against S$29.80 bought separately
- Hamburglar Reusable Bag: S$8.90 from 3 December, 11am

McDonaldâ??s also plans more than 60 meet and greet sessions from 28 November, with selected appearances featuring live caroling. The full schedule is on the Hamburglar page at mcdonalds.com.sg/hamburglar.

Key dates at a glance

- 26 November: Maple BBQ burgers, new sides, drinks and McPops, plus the Hamburglar Mischief Tees (11am)
- 28 November: meet and greet sessions begin across restaurants
- 3 December: Hamburglar Reusable Bag goes on sale (11am)

Prices above are the starting prices reported at launch, so check the menu on the day. Allergy note: McDonaldâ??s Singapore lists peanuts among the allergens for both Maple BBQ burgers, and the pistachio and Biscoff McPops list tree nuts. The full allergen information is on the McDonaldâ??s Singapore website.

Worth the queue?

The tees limit you to one item or one bundle per meal, so families who want a few will need to order a few meals. If you only want the new flavours, the S$0.70 Szechuan Sauce and S$2.95 McPops are the low-cost way to taste them.

The tee bundle saves S$1 against buying two separately. That is small, but it does give a parent and child a Master and Mini pair. The reusable bag at S$8.90 is the cheaper keepsake if you only want one piece of merch.
