Halal mud crab Singapore diners can actually afford is not easy to find, but Mutiara Seafood, JUMBO Groupâ??s first halal restaurant at Wisma Geylang Serai, is selling a whole mud crab of about 450 to 500g for S$38.80, down from the usual S$49, and the offer now runs to 31 December 2026 while stocks last. That is a proper chilli crab night for under S$40 a crab, before service charge and GST.

Here is what to know before you book, starting with the halal question.

Is Mutiara Seafood halal?

Yes. Mutiaraâ??s own website carries its MUIS Halal Certificate, which names Mutiara Seafood at 1 Engku Aman Turn, Wisma Geylang Serai, Singapore 408528, under the Food Preparation Area Scheme. The certificate reference is FPCA20240000586, and the MUIS halal logo also appears on the restaurantâ??s menus and promotion posters.

The site describes the restaurant as JUMBO Groupâ??s first halal restaurant. If you want to be doubly sure on the day, you can check the outlet on the MUIS HalalSG directory, as with any certified eatery.

The halal mud crab Singapore deal at S$38.80

The official promotion poster lists the mud crab at S$38.80 each (usual price S$49), at roughly 450 to 500g. It says the offer has been extended to 31 December 2026, while stocks last, and that T&Cs apply. Since it is stock-limited, reserve ahead and ask for the mud crab when you book.

Mutiaraâ??s menus are in English and Malay, and the crab is the Signature Chilli Crab served with fried mini buns for mopping up the gravy. Dishes on the set menus also include Indonesian grilled chicken, seafood tom yum soup, sambal broccoli with shrimp, stir-fried giant prawn in Sichuan sauce, and grilled chicken satay with peanut sauce.
