Affordable Art Fair Singapore returns to the F1 Pit Building from 26 to 29 November for its 19th edition, and advance tickets at S$24 are on sale until 22 November. From 23 November the adult price goes to S$28.

The fair brings 97 galleries from Singapore and overseas, with every work priced under S$15,000 and three in four below S$7,500, GST included. Prices start from S$100, and every piece is clearly priced.

What is on the floor

The organiser bills the 2026 fair as Singaporeâ??s longest-running international contemporary art fair. Paintings, sculpture and photography share the floor with hands-on workshops and large-scale installations, and local exhibitors sit alongside international galleries.

This yearâ??s campaign image is Narcissus and Figs, an acrylic on canvas by Relton Marine, shown by COLOURBOX at Â£2,950.

The workshop timetable and the full exhibitor line-up have not been released yet.

Tickets

- Private View, Thursday 26 November: S$60, online only and in limited numbers
- Advance, until 22 November: S$24 for adults, S$19 concession
- Fair week, 23 to 29 November: S$28 for adults, S$23 concession

Concession covers full-time students and visitors aged 60 and above, with proof shown at the door. Children under 16 go in free with an Under 16s ticket and an adult who holds a ticket or invitation.

Every ticket is a three-day pass, and the fair team on site can issue a re-entry link. Prices include GST, a booking fee is added at checkout on Eventbrite, and there are no refunds. Private View tickets are not sold at the door.
