

Arcc Spaces Bank Of Singapore Centre: Raffles Place Opening Guide

Description

Arcc Spaces is opening at Bank of Singapore Centre in Q2 2026, putting a new premium workspace option in the heart of Raffles Place. The official page lists the centre on Levels 5, 6 and 7 at 63 Market Street, Singapore 048942.

For teams comparing flexible office options, the important detail is the range of formats. Arcc lists private workspaces, coworking plans and enterprise solutions, with the page stating that teams from one to 50 pax can use move-in-ready spaces while larger enterprise floor plates can support up to 200 pax.

What Is Opening

Bank of Singapore Centre is already a recognised CBD address, so the opening is less about introducing a new building and more about adding a managed workspace layer to an established financial-district location. The official listing points to serviced offices, coworking memberships, meeting spaces and bespoke enterprise floors.

The building pitch is straightforward: Raffles Place access, a professionally managed Grade A setting, shared amenities and flexible lease terms. Those are useful for firms that need a CBD base without signing a conventional office lease.

Who Should Compare It

The centre will likely be most relevant to finance, consulting, professional-services and regional teams that need a client-friendly address near Raffles Place MRT. Small teams can treat it as a ready office; larger teams can compare the enterprise floor plates against a fit-out of their own.

The official page says enterprise floor plates range from 7,000 to 9,000 sq ft and can be unfitted for customisation or fitted for immediate occupation. That flexibility is the part worth comparing against lease length, fit-out cost and team-growth assumptions.

Visit Notes

Because pricing is enquiry-based, this is not a casual walk-in purchase decision. Companies should prepare headcount, preferred move-in timing, meeting-room needs and whether they want dedicated or shared areas before contacting the operator.
