Between Buns Deli has found a permanent home in the CBD, and the official site makes the pitch very clear: loaded sandwiches, deli classics and a proper lunch stop rather than a light snack counter.

The deli is now open at SBF Center, 160 Robinson Road, #01-01, Singapore 068914, according to Between Bunsâ?? official site.

What The Menu Is Built Around

THE GRIND NEVER STOPS

The official site positions Between Buns around loaded deli-style sandwiches.

The official site calls out tuna melts, French dips, deli classics and the kind of breakfast sandwich you think about late at night. It also mentions coffee, grain bowls, salads and fresh bakes, which makes the concept more flexible than a sandwich-only counter.

That matters in the CBD. A Robinson Road lunch crowd usually needs speed, but it also rewards places that can handle different appetites: one person wants a stacked sandwich, another wants a grain bowl, and someone else wants coffee and a bake.

Why It Stands Out

Between Buns started as a roving idea in 2020 before settling into a permanent address. That pop-up-to-store path gives it a ready audience, but the Robinson Road site now has to work as a repeat lunch and takeaway option.

The strongest reader use case is weekday lunch around Tanjong Pagar, Telok Ayer and Raffles Place. If you work nearby, this is the sort of opening to save for a slower lunch rather than discovering it only when queues are already built into the day.

The menu direction also makes it a stronger fit for office groups than many niche openings. A sandwich fan can go heavy, a lighter eater can pick a bowl or salad, and someone between meetings can still justify a quick coffee and bake.

The new permanent outlet also lists coffee, grain bowls, salads and fresh bakes.

How To Plan A Visit

Go earlier if you want the broadest choice, especially while the new-store interest is fresh. Sandwich-led concepts can sell out of popular fillings or bakes if the lunch rush is heavy.

For groups, check the menu before heading down and decide whether you are eating in or taking away. A deli lunch is smoother when everyone knows whether they want a hot sandwich, bowl or coffee stop.

If you are coming from Shenton Way, Telok Ayer or Raffles Place, the practical window is slightly before noon or after the peak lunch crush. That gives the deli a better chance to feel like a proper meal stop rather than a queue-management exercise.
