

Black Tap Singapore CrazySundae: World-First Dessert Debuts At Marina Bay Sands

Description

Black Tap Singapore CrazySundae is not just another dessert add-on at Marina Bay Sands. Black Tap is a New York-born burger and shake brand known for craft burgers, towering CrazyShake milkshakes and a loud, old-school hip-hop diner mood. Singapore is its first Asian flagship, and the Marina Bay Sands outlet is much larger than the original New York joint.

The new hook is the CrazySundae, a world-first dessert format launched in Singapore, alongside a refreshed alfresco area. That makes the MBS outlet more useful for two groups: dessert hunters who already know Black Tap for its dramatic shakes, and families or tourists who want a casual American meal inside The Shoppes without committing to fine dining prices.

What Black Tap Is Known For

The food side is built around American-style craft burgers. MBS highlights The All-American Burger and The Wagyu Steakhouse Burger, which uses a wagyu beef patty with pepper jack cheese, bacon, crispy onions and roasted garlic aioli. Dessert is the more Instagram-heavy side: CrazyShake flavours include Cotton Candy, The Cookie Shake and Cookies â??N Cream Supreme.

Black Tapâ??s own Singapore page also points to the outletâ??s 130-seat scale, its bespoke mural by local artist Has.J and the brandâ??s old-school hip-hop soundtrack. In practice, this is not a quiet business-lunch restaurant. It is better for group meals, birthday desserts, tourists staying around Bayfront and anyone who wants burgers and shakes in one stop.

How To Use The CrazySundae Launch

If you are going mainly for the CrazySundae, go outside peak dinner time so the dessert does not compete with the busiest burger queue. For a full meal, order one burger per diner and share a shake or sundae unless everyone has a serious sweet tooth; Black Tap portions are built for impact, not a light snack. Sands LifeStyle members can also earn and redeem Resort Dollars at the restaurant, which helps if you already use MBS dining benefits.
