If you have been sitting on a hotel booking for next year, this is the week to stop dithering. The Booking.com Black Friday deals Singapore travellers can see on the official deals page start at 30% off and go up to 40% off stays, and the booking window runs from 19 November to 2 December 2026. The stay dates are generous too: any night from 19 November 2026 to 31 December 2027, at participating properties worldwide.

That means you can lock in a Chinese New Year trip, a June school-holiday getaway or even a 2027 year-end break while the discount is on. Prices on the page show in S$ when you choose SGD as your currency.

What the Booking.com Black Friday deals cover

The campaign is not just hotels. Booking.com lists a deal in each of its main travel categories, so a single trip can be discounted in several places.

- Stays: up to 40% off, with Black Friday Deals starting from 30% off
- Car rental: up to 25% off
- Attractions and experiences: up to 20% off
- Airport transfers: 15% off
- Flights: a Black Friday flights section is listed, with no headline percentage on the page

Booking.com says the stay discount is applied to the price before taxes and charges are added. So a headline 40% off will not cut your final bill by exactly 40%, because taxes and service charges are calculated on top. Always check the total at checkout, not the strikethrough price on the search results.

Booking.com Black Friday deals Singapore: dates to remember

- 19 November 2026: booking window opens
- 2 December 2026: last day to book a Black Friday deal
- 19 November 2026 to 31 December 2027: stay dates covered at participating properties

The deals page counts down the days left, so do not leave it to the final evening. Rooms at the best-priced properties tend to disappear first, especially for school-holiday weeks. If your leave dates are not confirmed, look for listings that you can still change later, and read the cancellation terms on each one before you pay.

How to find the real bargains

A discount badge tells you very little by itself. Here is a simple routine that takes ten minutes.

1. Open the Black Friday deals page and set the currency to SGD so you compare like with like.
2. Enter your actual dates, not the placeholder ones the page offers. The default search on the page was Friday 27 November to Saturday 28 November.
3. Filter for the Black Friday Deal label, then sort by price and by guest review score.
4. Open two or three shortlisted rooms and check the cancellation terms, breakfast and the final price with taxes.
5. Compare against the hotelâ??s own site if you belong to its loyalty programme, as members sometimes get perks that online agents do not.

Cities in Asia are the obvious pick from Singapore. The deals page itself features destination tiles such as Tokyo and Kyoto, both short direct flights away. Japan visits are easy on the paperwork side, and if Korea is on your list, our note on the Korea K-ETA exemption for 2027 explains why Singapore passport holders still do not need one.

Stack it with other hotel offers

Booking.com is one of several places running year-end hotel sales right now. Local staycations are worth a look if you would rather skip the flight, such as the Fairmont Singapore Third Night On Us package, or the Mondrian Singapore Duxton end of year sale, where you can book until 11 December. Compare these against a Black Friday rate for the same dates before you commit.

One more practical point: car rental and airport transfer discounts only help if you will be driving or need a pick-up on arrival. In dense cities with good MRT or metro systems, you may save more by skipping both and buying a transit pass instead.

The fine print

- Deals apply at participating properties only, and availability varies by date.
- The percentage is the maximum at the top end; many listings sit nearer the 30% starting point.
- The discount is taken off the price before taxes and charges.
- Offer terms and which properties take part can change, so rely on the price shown at checkout.

If a trip is already on your calendar, this is a straightforward way to shave a good chunk off the room bill. If it is not, resist the urge to book a place you cannot actually use. A non-refundable 40% discount is still a waste if the leave application gets rejected.
