

CEE 2026 At Suntec: What To Know Before The 29 May Tech Show

Description

CEE 2026 is scheduled for 29 to 31 May 2026 at Suntec Convention Centre Levels 3 and 4, with the organiser's pre-registration page pointing visitors to the show guide and tech promotions. The event sits in the familiar Singapore tech-show lane: laptops, phones, accessories, smart-home devices, gaming gear and show-floor bundles.

For shoppers, the timing matters because it lands at the end of May, just before the June school-holiday purchase window for home upgrades, study devices and travel gadgets.

What To Check Before Going

Make a device list before entering the hall. Tech fairs are useful when you already know whether you need a laptop, monitor, router, phone case, tablet or appliance; they become noisy when every booth is treated as a possible purchase.

Check online prices for your shortlisted models first. A show bundle may still be good value because of add-ons, trade-in deals or warranty extras, but the real comparison should include the exact storage, RAM, screen size and service coverage.

CEE's official event branding identifies the consumer electronics fair.

Who Should Pre-Register

Pre-registration is most useful if you want early access to the show guide and a cleaner plan for the floor. Families buying student laptops, homeowners comparing smart appliances and gamers watching monitor prices should start with model numbers rather than broad categories.
