Meet Deborah Ku

Deborah Ku brings more than 20 years of F&B experience to the role. She grew up helping at her family's buffet restaurant, where she learnt firsthand the realities of running a food business – the long hours, the uncertainties, and the quiet resilience required. That early exposure shaped her belief that hospitality is fundamentally about people: caring for them genuinely, not just efficiently.

Her path to Chick-fil-A was circuitous but purposeful. During the COVID-19 pandemic, while working to keep her family's business afloat, she began listening to leadership interviews featuring Chick-fil-A executives. Their philosophy – that work could be – soul breathing, – deeply fulfilling and people-focused – resonated strongly. The dream her father had nursed for years, of bringing the brand to Singapore, became her own.

She went on to complete Chick-fil-A's rigorous Owner-Operator selection process, a nearly two-year journey undertaken while running a full-time business, raising her two sons, and expecting her third. Her husband Leonard will also be involved in the restaurant's operations. Together, they are building a team of 60 to 80 people, with a strong focus on mentorship, development, and helping Team Members discover what the Japanese call ikigai – the intersection of what you love, what you're good at, what the world needs, and what you can be paid for.

– Having grown up in a culture rooted in warm hospitality, being part of Chick-fil-A's journey in Singapore is a dream come true – not just for me, but also for my family, who have long admired the company's strong culture of care and commitment to the community. –

Giving Back at Opening

To mark the opening, Chick-fil-A is donating S$25,000 to The Food Bank Singapore in support of a forthcoming food support initiative for tertiary students from lower-income households, launching in Q4 2026. This is consistent with the brand's pledge to donate S$25,000 to The Food Bank Singapore each time it opens a new restaurant in Singapore.

Millenia Walk will also participate in the Chick-fil-A Shared Table® programme, redirecting surplus food through The Food Bank Singapore to those in need – part of a global effort that has generated more than 42 million meals worldwide.
