

Children's Season 2026 Turns National Museum Into A River-Themed Playground

Description

Children's Season 2026 is running at the National Museum of Singapore until 28 June, with this year's theme built around the river.

The museum's June school-holiday programme mixes ticketed workshops with free installations and drop-in activities, so families can choose either a structured session or a lighter museum stop.

The River Theme

The theme is listed as Get Curious! All About the River. That gives the programme a useful learning frame for younger visitors, from water movement and river life to Singapore's relationship with waterways.

Families can build the visit around sensory play, STEAM activities, storytelling, hands-on craft or the free interactive installation depending on the child's age and attention span.

- Overall dates: 30 May to 28 June 2026.
- Venue: National Museum of Singapore.
- Mix: ticketed workshops, free activities and drop-in programmes.
- Theme: Get Curious! All About the River.

Activities To Look For

The museum listing includes Discovering the River: Sensory Play Journey, From Foul to Fresh, PLAY @ Children's Season 2026, The River Road, The River Hunt and Make and Discover Weekends.

Free options such as Fold Your Own Fleet, Kamishibai storytelling and the stamp-booklet activity make the programme friendlier for families who do not want to book every part of the day in advance.

How To Use The Museum Day

For preschoolers, choose one ticketed workshop and one free activity rather than trying to cover everything. For primary-school children, the STEAM and river-hunt activities can anchor a longer outing.

Families should also check whether the child needs a calmer sensory activity or something with movement. The official programme has both workshop-style and drop-in elements, so it is easier to match the day to the child's energy instead of following a generic museum route.

That choice matters because the museum visit can be short and focused, or expanded into a full afternoon.

Parents can also compare this with other family-friendly entries in the Little Big Red Dot parenting archive if they need a wet-weather backup.
