

Gamtan Korean BBQ Singapore: Telok Ayer's King Galbi Specialist Now Open

Description

If you have already worked your way through Singapore's familiar K-BBQ haunts, Gamtan Korean BBQ Singapore at Telok Ayer is the next stop worth marking. Helmed by a master butcher and chef duo with more than 15 years of combined experience, Gamtan is built around rare butcher-crafted cuts, comforting pot-rice and a quiet bias towards quality over volume.

What Sets Gamtan Apart

The headline cut at Gamtan is King Galbi — a rare, hand-cut piece of Korean short rib that the team has positioned as their signature. It is the only restaurant in Singapore currently serving this specific preparation, and the cut is butchered in-house rather than ordered pre-cut from a supplier.

This level of butchery craft is unusual in Singapore's K-BBQ scene, where many restaurants compete on volume and side-dish variety. Gamtan's pitch is the opposite: fewer, better, more deliberate cuts.

Beyond the Grill: Pot Rice and Banchan

Beyond the grill, Gamtan's menu is anchored by pot rice dishes that are slow-cooked in stone bowls, alongside a tight rotation of traditional Korean banchan (side dishes). The combination is intentional — the richness of the grilled meat is balanced by the warmth of pot rice and the freshness of pickled and fermented sides.

Comforting pot-rice and traditional Korean banchan complete the Gamtan experience.

The Telok Ayer Setting

The interior is described by Gamtan as a “thoughtfully crafted setting” a quieter, more intimate dining room than the typical bustling K-BBQ format. It suits date nights and small-group dinners more than rowdy after-work crowds.
