

Gardens By The Bay Waterfront Diversion: What Cyclists Should Know

Description

Gardens by the Bay has a Waterfront Promenade access change from 4 May 2026 because of works for the bridge linking Bay South Garden and Bay East Garden. Cyclists heading towards Marina Barrage are advised to take an alternative route around the perimeter of Bay South Garden, while pedestrians can still access the promenade with a slight diversion.

This is a small but useful travel note for anyone who uses the Marina Bay cycling loop, especially on weekends when the route is busy with families, runners and visitors.

What Changes

The affected point is the Waterfront Promenade route near Gardens by the Bay. Cyclists should expect a detour rather than a straight-through ride towards Marina Barrage.

Pedestrians are less affected, but should still watch for signs and narrowed paths. If you are pushing a stroller or walking with seniors, allow extra time and avoid peak heat.

Route Planning

Use the perimeter route around Bay South Garden if you are cycling. For leisure rides, consider starting earlier, pausing at Satay by the Bay, or switching to a shorter loop if children are not comfortable with diversions.
