Both events in this piece have ended. GupShupâ??s Pani Poori Face-Off was a one-day contest on 25 July 2026, and SHIKARâ??s fifth-anniversary menu ran 17 July to 15 August 2026. Neither is listed on the venuesâ?? own sites as of 26 August 2026.

Last updated: 26 August 2026.

Are the GupShup and SHIKAR offers still running?

No. GupShupâ??s Pani Poori Face-Off was a single Saturday event on 25 July, run in hourly heats from noon to 6pm at S$15 entry. SHIKARâ??s six-course anniversary menu at S$178++, with an optional S$85++ cocktail pairing, ran for a four-week window that closed 15 August. Both restaurants are still trading; it is only these two dated offers that have lapsed.

What did each event actually involve?

The GupShup challenge was a two-minute speed-eating format: pay S$15, take a booked heat, eat as many pani pooris as you can before time runs out, with a hotel stay as the advertised top prize. It ran at GupShup, 301 Serangoon Road, The Serangoon House.

SHIKARâ??s menu was a six-course tasting progression led by Chef Jolly, built around Maine lobster tail, charcoal-cooked New Zealand Maimoa lamb chops, Queensland Wagyu short-rib biryani with foie gras sauce, and an Alphonso mango dessert, served at SHIKAR, 2 Cook Street, Maxwell Reserve.

Are GupShup and SHIKAR still open for regular dining?

Yes, both restaurants continue normal service. GupShupâ??s own site lists daily service from noon to 2.30pm and 5pm to 10pm, reachable at +65 6978 5177. SHIKAR lists lunch from noon to 2.30pm and dinner from 6pm to 10pm daily, at +65 6978 5175. Neither restaurantâ??s site currently lists a replacement event or anniversary menu at the time of this update.

Whatâ??s not yet known

Whether GupShup or SHIKAR plan a follow-up event has not been announced on either restaurantâ??s own site or Marriottâ??s offers page as of 26 August. For other current dining ideas in the meantime, browse Little Big Red Dotâ??s Food & Drinks coverage or compare against the halal claypot fish-head curry guide, and check this siteâ??s most recent Maxwell-area coverage if a Chinatown or Tanjong Pagar meal is the plan instead.

Both dated offers are over, so this piece now exists as a record of what ran rather than something to book. Weâ??ll update again if either restaurant brings back a similar promotion.
