Description

Hedda Gabler by the National Theater Company of Korea runs from 28 to 30 May 2026 at Drama Centre Theatre under SIFA. The Ibsen classic arrives in a Korean production with a 160-minute running time and an age rating of 15 years and above.

For theatre fans, it is one of the festivalâ??s heavier dramatic offerings: ambition, social pressure, marriage, control and self-destruction packed into a late-May slot.

The official Hedda Gabler square visual is used for the performance guide.

Who This Is For

Book this if you like text-led theatre, psychological tension and international stagings of canonical works. The longer runtime means it is less of a casual festival sampler and more of a committed evening at the theatre.

Standard regular prices start from S$48, with concession pricing available for eligible ticket holders.

Session Notes

Performances are on Thursday and Friday at 8pm, and Saturday at 2pm. As with many SIFA theatre works, late seating is restricted, so plan dinner and transport before the show rather than cutting it close.
