Description

Harvey Norman Black Friday Comes Early 2026 runs from 12 to 26 November 2026, and the retailer says it is guaranteeing 50% off electricals, computers, furniture and bedding. The sale page also shows examples such as a Smeg induction hob at S$480 (usual S$1,390) and a King Koil queen mattress at S$3,441 (usual S$8,049). Today is day four, so there are still 11 days to shop before it ends on 26 November.

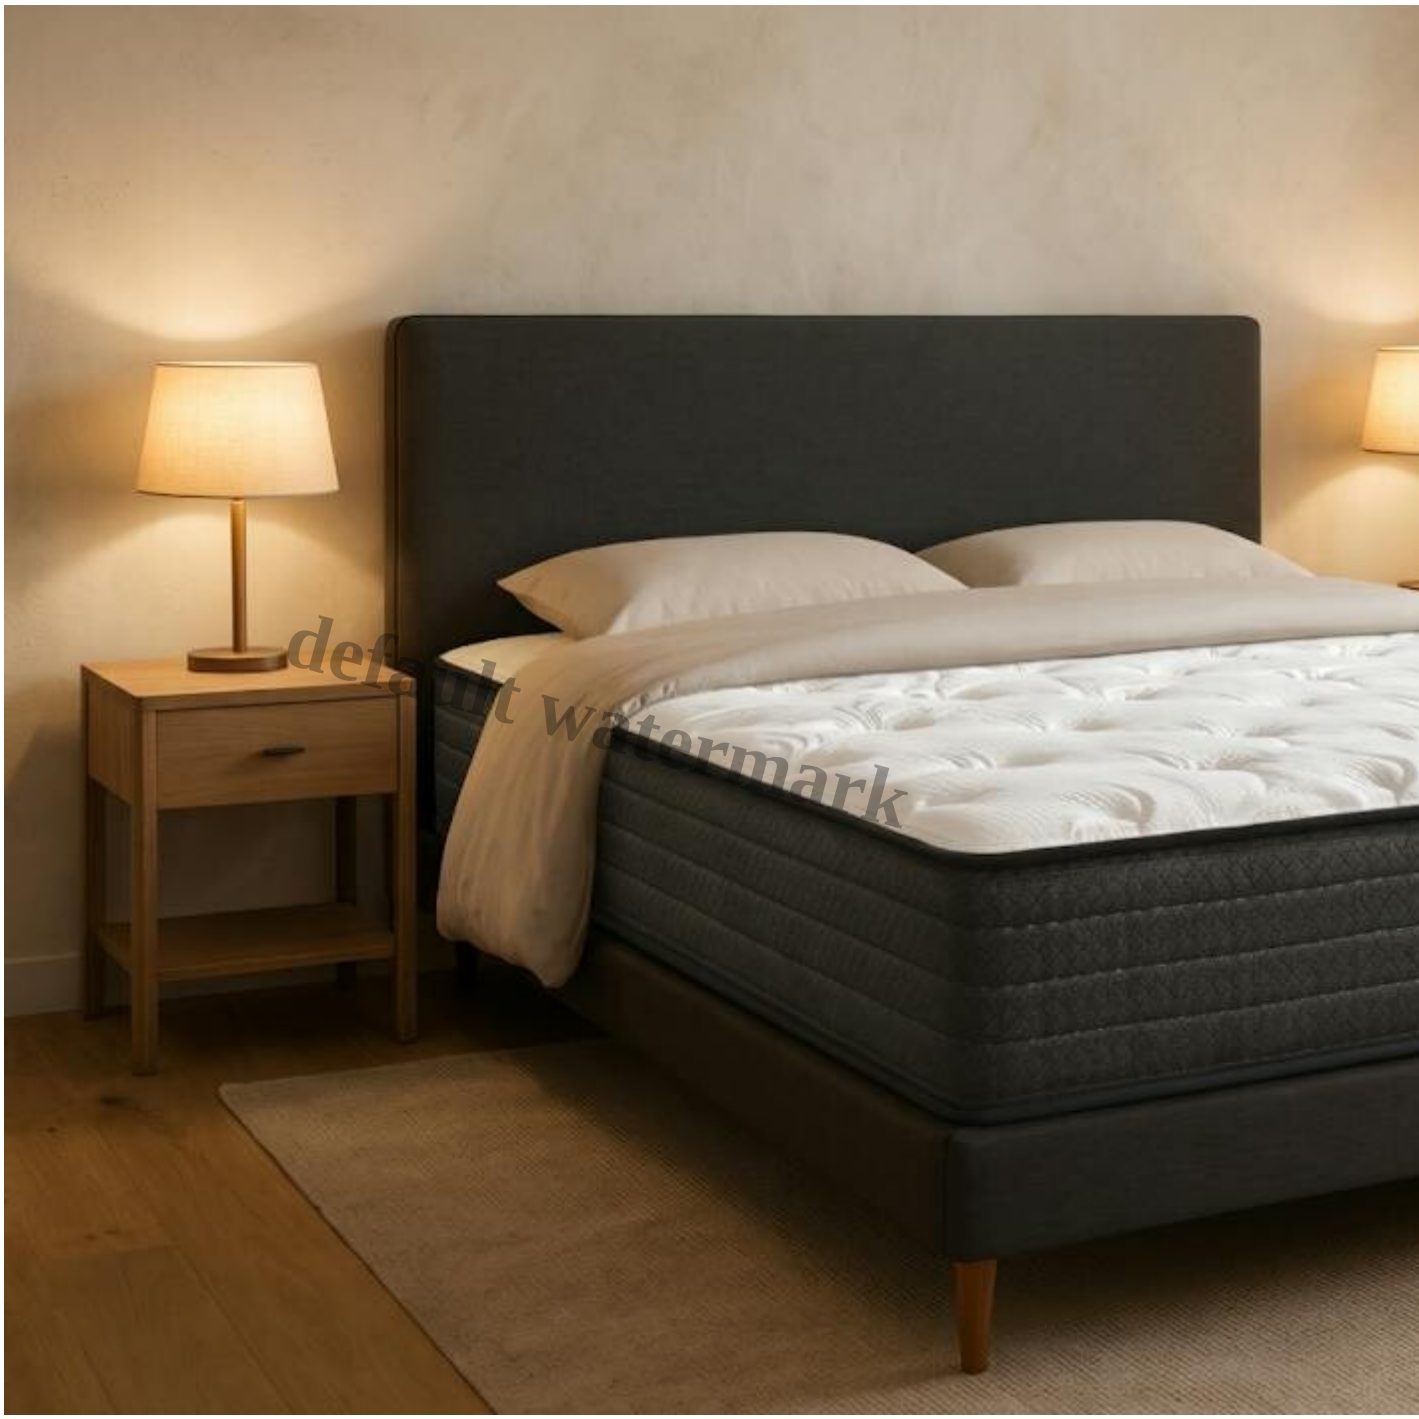

The page does not say which furniture and bedding items carry the 50% label, so check each product tag before you commit. Here is what the sale page shows.

Harvey Norman Black Friday Comes Early 2026: sample prices

- Tineco Floor One S6 Stretch Lite: S$298, usual S$1,999

Some bedding lines are less generous. The page marks the Sealy and Simmons mattresses with â??add to cart for 14.5% offâ•, which is well below the headline figure. Read the label on the exact model.

Free delivery, instalments and a S$10 voucher

Harvey Norman lists free delivery on the page, subject to its terms and conditions. That matters for a mattress or a recliner, which you do not want to carry up the HDB lift yourself.

- Instalment plans: 0% interest for up to 24 months
- Buy Now Pay Later: pay in 4, 8 or 12 months through the Grab promotion page
- Newsletter sign-up: a S$10 e-voucher

- Shop and Win: spend at least S$100 on a single receipt, then submit an entry online

The page also tags some appliances as eligible to apply for the Climate Voucher, including the Europace fan, the Smeg dryer and the Hisense washer. Terms apply, so check eligibility before you rely on it.

Limited sets and in-store only deals

A few lines are capped. The Samsung HW-S60D soundbar is limited to the first 20 sets and the Philips 32-inch TV to the first 10 sets, both in-store only. If you have your eye on a headline price, go early or ask the store to confirm stock.

How to shop the sale without overspending

1. Measure first. A queen frame, a recliner and a storage bed all look smaller in a showroom than in a 4-room BTO bedroom.
2. Compare the â??usualâ?• price with what you have seen before. A big crossed-out number is only useful if it was a real selling price.
3. Ask what the free delivery covers, including lift access and old mattress removal.
4. Choose instalments only if you can clear the balance inside the 0% period.

Who this sale suits

It suits anyone replacing a mattress or bed frame before a move, or a couple furnishing a new BTO flat. Big-ticket bedroom pieces show the largest gaps between the usual price and the sale price on the page. Small flats reward careful measuring, because a storage bed such as the Effie frees up floor space that a separate chest of drawers would take.

Delivery slots tend to fill up as the sale nears its last weekend. Book early if you need the furniture by a particular date, such as a key collection or a renovation handover.
