

Infinite Graffiti At i Light Singapore 2026: A Shared Light Canvas For Families

Description

Infinite Graffiti brings a hands-on public art stop to i Light Singapore 2026. The installation by Canadian collective Graffiti+ will be at the entrance of Marina Bay Link Mall, letting visitors use a spray-can-style interface to create glowing marks on a five-metre canvas.

It keeps the physical gesture of graffiti while replacing paint with light, which makes it accessible for families and casual visitors.

Why It May Be Busy

Because the work is interactive, expect dwell time. People will not just look, take a photo and leave; they will wait to add their own marks, especially during the early festival evenings.

It is also presented in partnership with Families for Life as part of the National Family Festival, so it is likely to draw intergenerational groups.

How To Fit It Into Your Night

Use it as either a starting point from Raffles Place or a connector between the CBD and Marina Bay route. If you are visiting with children, give this stop more time than a standard light sculpture.
