What the brand is putting on the table

Island Living has listed a few examples. Some are in store only, so do not count on getting them from the online selection.

- Best-seller steal: was S$90, now S$45 (in store only)
- Basket Market: from S$8 (in store only)
- Dining set: was S$890, now S$250 (in store only)
- A featured furniture find at 50% off (in store only)
- Half-price dinner sets, 50% off (in store and online)
- Another find: was S$429, now S$180 (in store only)

The brand also mentions massive discounts on furniture, up to 70% off kitchenware, and baskets and home decor from S$5. The listing does not name specific models for the S$890 and S$429 items, so expect to browse on the day.

Tips before you go

Warehouse sales reward the early and the prepared. Island Livingâ??s terms are strict on clearance items, so a little homework saves regret.

- Measure first. Take your room and doorway measurements, and a photo of your space
- Bring a way to get things home. Larger pieces will need a van or delivery, so ask about options at the showroom
- Go early if you want the best pick of furniture. Stock is limited, and the sale says it runs while stocks last
- Check what is online. If you cannot make the trip, the online finds open from 12am on Friday
- Pay attention to the fine print: all clearance item sales are final, with no exchange or refund on clearance items

Sale items and availability may vary, and the 15% storewide discount applies to regular-priced items rather than clearance. The sale page does not state an end date for the storewide offer, so do not assume it carries on after 15 November.

If you are planning to shop online instead, remember the selected finds go live from Friday at 12am and may sell out faster than the in-store stock. Sign up on the sale page for the shopping link so you are not hunting for it later.

For something specific, such as a dining set or a daybed, call or message the showroom before you head down. Island Living lists a WhatsApp number and an email on its website, and staff can tell you whether a piece is still on the floor.

Getting there

The showroom is at 8 Kaki Bukit Ave 1, #06-03/04, Singapore 417941. It is an industrial building, so check the route and parking before you set off, and allow time for the lift on a busy afternoon. Opening hours are 11am to 6pm each day of the sale, so tomorrowâ??s last session is a short one.
