

ITZY Singapore 2026: Compare Every Ticket Option

Description

default watermark

ITZYâ??s Tunnel Vision tour plays Singapore Indoor Stadium on Saturday, 3 October 2026 at 6pm. Published face-value tickets range from S$158 to S$358 before booking fees, while optional event collectables add S$28. The right option depends on view, standing eligibility and whether the VIP experience is actually useful to you. Live Nation Singapore confirms the date, time and venue.

ITZY Singapore 2026 essentials

Date	Saturday, 3 October 2026
Time	6pm
Venue	Singapore Indoor Stadium
Lowest listed face value	S$158, restricted view
Highest listed face value	S$358, VIP seated
General-sale limit	Six tickets per transaction

Ticket and admission details were checked on Ticketmaster Singaporeâ??s official event page on 5 August 2026. Inventory and seat locations can change, so use the live checkout as the final record.

Compare the published ticket totals

Ticketmaster lists a S$8 booking fee for the S$158, S$178, S$228, S$258, S$288 and S$298 tiers, because they sit between S$101 and S$300. Tickets above S$300 attract a S$10 fee. The optional event collectable adds S$28 to every listed category before the relevant booking fee.

Option	Face value	With fee	With collectable and fee
Cat 8 restricted view	S$158	S$166	S$194
Cat 6	S$178	S$186	S$214

Option	Face value	With fee	With collectable and fee
Cat 5	S$228	S$236	S$264
Cat 4 or Cat 7 restricted view	S$258	S$266	S$294
Cat 1 standing or Cat 3	S$288	S$296	S$324
Cat 2	S$298	S$306	S$334
VIP standing	S$348	S$358	S$386
VIP seated	S$358	S$368	S$396

These totals are LBRD calculations from Ticketmasterâ??s published prices and fee bands. They exclude transport, food and other merchandise. The collectable is described as a post-event souvenir, not a better seat or an added fan interaction.

What the S$28 collectable changes

The collectable option costs exactly S$28 more across the table. For two fans, that is S$56; for four, S$112. Buy it only if the physical post-event souvenir is worth that amount to the buyer. It does not convert a restricted-view ticket into an unrestricted view, move a seat, or add VIP access.

When comparing two categories, separate the seat decision from the souvenir decision. First choose an acceptable view and format. Then decide whether to add the collectable. This prevents merchandise from nudging you into a poor seat.

VIP seated versus VIP standing

Live Nation lists both VIP seated and VIP standing. Each includes a ticket, commemorative laminate and lanyard, soundcheck-party access, a limited-edition gift, a dedicated merchandise lane subject to availability, and priority entry. The standing option does not have a designated place inside the pen.

The S$10 face-value difference means VIP seated has the clearer position, while VIP standing may appeal to someone who values proximity and can tolerate queuing and prolonged standing. Priority entry helps only if you can arrive for the organiserâ??s instructed time. Live Nation says detailed VIP timing will be released two days before the show through its social channels.

Standing eligibility comes before price

1. Below age three: infants in arms and children below three are not admitted.
2. Age three and above: each attendee needs a full ticket.
3. Under age 12: the child must remain with a ticket-holding parent or legal guardian aged 18 or older.
4. Standing pens: children under 12 and attendees below 1.2 metres are not allowed in the standing areas.

If anyone in the party fails the standing rule, remove VIP standing and Cat 1 standing before comparing prices. Do not buy a standing ticket on the assumption that venue staff will create an alternative seat.

How to judge a restricted view

Cat 7 and Cat 8 are explicitly labelled restricted view. The S$158 Cat 8 price is the lowest published face value, but its value depends on what is obstructed. Open the exact seat map, note the section and row, and decide whether missing part of the stage, screens or production would undermine the experience.

A S$100 saving is poor value if the groupâ??s main priority is choreography and the obstruction affects the performance area. It can still be rational for a fan who prioritises hearing the show live and accepts the limitation. The listing is a warning, not enough information to infer the exact obstruction for every seat.

Use this purchase decision tree

1. Remove standing categories if age, height, mobility or comfort makes them unsuitable.
2. Set a maximum total including the booking fee and, if wanted, the S$28 collectable.
3. Reject restricted-view inventory unless the exact limitation is acceptable.
4. Choose VIP only if soundcheck and early arrival are usable, not merely because inventory pressure creates urgency.
5. Buy through the authorised Ticketmaster route linked by Live Nation and keep the ticket in the correct account.

Ticketmaster warns against unauthorised sellers and says ticket resale is prohibited. A sellerâ??s screenshot cannot prove the ticket will remain valid or transferable.

Arrival and exit plan

For a 6pm start, use 4.30pm as a conservative precinct-arrival target for an ordinary ticket, then follow any later organiser instruction for doors or VIP. This is an LBRD buffer, not an official door time. VIP holders may need a much earlier arrival once the soundcheck schedule is released.

- Load the ticket in the Ticketmaster account before leaving home.
- Charge the phone and bring a suitable power bank.
- Use Stadium MRT unless a live service alert changes the route.
- Do not bring outside food or drinks, which the admission policy prohibits.
- Choose a group meeting point outside the immediate exit surge.

After the show, Stadium MRT and pickup roads may be crowded. Either join the rail queue, walk away from the venue before arranging a car, or wait for the first surge to ease. Families should write the meeting point into each childâ??s phone or card.

Accessibility questions

Ticketmaster directs customers needing accessible seating to +65 6018 7645 and says arrangements depend on venue policy and availability. Contact the authorised seller before buying, especially if a companion seat or step-free route is required.

Bottom line

Start with eligibility and view, then calculate the complete price. The cheapest ITZY option is restricted view, the collectable is a separate S$28 souvenir, and VIP value depends on using soundcheck and priority entry. Recheck Live Nation and Ticketmaster near 3 October because inventory and operational instructions can change.
