IU will play two nights at the National Stadium on Saturday 6 March and Sunday 7 March 2027. Her agency, EDAM Entertainment, announced the first leg of the 2027 IU World Tour Concert on 22 November. CNA and The Straits Times report that these are her first concerts at the venue.

Ticket prices, the seat map, sale dates and show times have not been released yet.

The move to the stadium is a step up in scale. Her last Singapore concert, H.E.R. in 2024, was at the Singapore Indoor Stadium, and The Straits Times reports that her earlier shows here were at The Star Theatre.

The 2027 tour so far

Singapore is the fifth city on a first leg of 19 shows in 10 cities between January and May 2027. Every stop runs two nights except Sydney, which has one. The official poster ends with â??And moreâ?•, so further dates are expected, and no Korean shows are on the first leg.

A crowded weekend in Kallang

IUâ??s Singapore dates fall on the same Saturday and Sunday as Stray Kidsâ?? RUN IT shows at the Singapore Indoor Stadium, which sits next to the National Stadium in the Kallang sports precinct. Stray Kids tickets were priced from S$168 to S$378 before booking fees, with both nights starting at 6pm and doors at 4pm. Live Nation now lists the general sale as sold out.

That puts two large K-pop crowds through Stadium MRT station on the Circle Line on the same two evenings. Kallang station on the East-West Line is the other way in on foot. Getting home with two large crowds leaving Kallang on the same night is the part of the weekend that needs planning once IUâ??s start time is out.

What to watch for next

The details that decide a booking are still missing: the ticketing partner, category prices, any presale for the official fan club, and the sale date. Until those arrive, the dates and the venue are the only fixed points of the Singapore run.
