

How To Keep A Singapore Home Cooler: IKEA's July 2026 Practical Picks

Description

The retailer's updated Singapore guide groups together breathable bedding, air movement and portable cooling gear, with selected promotional prices running from 9 July to 26 August 2026 while stocks last.

The sensible takeaway is to deal with heat in layers: reduce trapped warmth around the bed, move stale air, block direct afternoon sun and keep chilled supplies ready for the commute or balcony.

Start With The Bedroom

A warm mattress and heavy bedding can hold heat even after the room temperature drops. A lighter cover, breathable sheet and a pillow designed to move moisture away from the body can make the sleeping surface feel less sticky.

Washable protectors are useful in Singapore's humidity because they can be cleaned more often than a mattress. Leave enough space around the bed for air to circulate instead of pressing every side against cabinets.

- Choose lighter bedding for humid nights.
- Rotate and air pillows and protectors regularly.
- Keep the path of a fan clear.

Move Air Before Turning Colder

A fan works best when it pushes warm air out or pulls cooler evening air in, rather than facing a closed corner. Pair it with closed curtains during the hottest afternoon hours, then ventilate when outdoor air becomes cooler.

IKEA's current cooling page also lists portable options. The SOLUPPGÅNG cool basket is S$19.90, down from S$49.90, while the FRAKTA cool bag is S$3.90 during the listed window, subject to availability.

- SOLUPPGÃ NG cool basket: S$19.90.
- FRAKTA cool bag: S$3.90.
- KLOTPIL cooling bag: S$29.90.

Small Changes That Compound

Heat from cooking, laundry and electronics builds up in smaller flats. Use the cooker hood, dry clothes with ventilation, and switch off idle chargers or gaming equipment rather than letting several small sources warm one room.

- Block direct sun before the room heats up.
- Ventilate after cooking and showering.
- Check stock and current price before travelling to a store.
