Monster Curry is putting chocolate in its curry for Christmas. A Meiji collaboration menu runs at Monster Curry outlets from 16 November 2026 to 3 January 2027, led by a S$16.90 Meiji Black Choco Katsu Curry.

The Japanese curry chain is known for its demi-glace curry. For the festive run it has paired up with Meiji, the Japanese confectionery maker, and built six items around Meiji Black Chocolate, Hello Panda, Chocorooms and Uproll.

The Meiji menu and prices

- Meiji Black Choco Katsu Curry, S$16.90: the classic katsu curry with Monster Curryâ??s demi-glace sauce, with Meiji Black Chocolate mixed in for a hint of sweetness. Pork or chicken katsu.
- Meiji Black Choco Curry Fries, S$8.90: thick-cut fries with the same chocolate curry sauce.
- Choco Noel Honey Toast, S$14.50: buttery toast with Meiji Black Chocolate ganache, toasted marshmallows, Chocorooms and fresh strawberries, topped with vanilla ice cream and a small Santa.
- Choco Cone Milkshake, S$6.90: a chocolate milkshake topped with Uproll.
- Strawberry Cone Milkshake, S$6.90: a strawberry milkshake, also topped with Uproll.
- Deck-the-Toast, S$13.90: a make-your-own honey toast with honey-buttered toast cubes, Meiji Black Chocolate ganache, Hello Panda, strawberries and sprinkles. Ice cream is a S$2 top-up.

The menu photo shows the chocolate poured over the curry from a small jug, and Monster Curry pitches it as a richer curry with a touch of sweetness rather than a dessert. The fries get the same chocolate curry sauce, at S$8.90, if you want a side for the table.

Dine-in only, plus service charge

The festive menu is for dine-in only and runs while stocks last. Prices are subject to a 10 per cent service charge and GST, so the S$16.90 katsu curry is not the bill total.

Monster Curry also runs a Meiji Holiday Toast Workshop for families on selected weekends at selected outlets, with limited spots and booking required. Monster Curry has not published session dates or a price yet; bookings go through its workshop page.
