

NoMad Grill Singapore: What Is Confirmed So Far

Description

NoMad Hilton Singapore is announced for late 2026, with NoMad Grill among its food-and-drink venues. A firm opening day, menu, prices and reservations should be treated as pending until the Singapore property publishes them through an official booking channel.

A Singapore diner deciding whether to plan a future meal at NoMad Grill needs one outcome: separate confirmed concept and location details from prices, dates and booking facts that are not yet published.

Keep confirmed facts apart from plans

Situation	Practical next step
You want an opening-date booking	Wait for the property’s official date and live reservation inventory
You are comparing restaurant concepts	Use the confirmed grill identity, but label dishes and prices as unknown
You need dietary or accessibility details	Ask the venue after its Singapore contact channel opens
A social post offers prepayment now	Verify it against Hilton or NoMad’s official Singapore channel

You want an opening-date booking: Wait for the property’s official date and live reservation inventory. You are comparing restaurant concepts: Use the confirmed grill identity, but label dishes and prices as unknown.

The confirmed headline is late 2026

Hilton's announcement says the NoMad brand will debut in Asia Pacific with a Singapore property expected to open in late 2026. It names NoMad Grill as a dining venue and shows an official rendering. "Late 2026" is a target window, not permission to invent a soft-opening week. Hilton NoMad Singapore announcement.

Concept is not the same as menu

The release describes a grill concept within the wider hotel, but it does not publish a Singapore menu, portion sizes, set formats or prices. Comparisons with New York, London or Las Vegas may explain brand lineage but cannot be quoted as Singapore offerings. Hilton NoMad Singapore announcement.

Three facts decide a useful booking

Before committing, verify the exact opening date, the live menu with service periods, and the reservation or cancellation terms. Groups should add seating format and deposit; diners with allergies should ask about the actual kitchen and menu rather than rely on pre-opening copy. Hilton NoMad press archive.

Watch the official channels, not reposts

Use the property's official site and Hilton announcement pages for opening and booking updates. A third-party listing can be a lead, but the reservation should resolve to an official or clearly authorised platform. Do not transfer a deposit from a direct message. Hilton NoMad press archive.

Choose the occasion only after facts arrive

The current positioning suggests a polished hotel-grill occasion, but value cannot be judged without menu and price. Once published, compare a realistic meal—food, drinks, service charge and GST where applicable—with other restaurants for the same group size and purpose. Hilton NoMad Singapore announcement.

Place the Grill inside the announced four-venue plan

Hilton's release describes a 19-storey NoMad property with NoMad Grill, cabaret-inspired Tropicana Club, soft-serve-and-cocktail concept Sticky Fingers and poolside L¹ Bar. Sticky Fingers is planned to change from daytime sundaes to evening drinks, while the Grill carries the brasserie and chophouse brief. That wider mix helps a reader decide whether to watch the hotel for dinner, drinks or dessert. It does not establish shared opening hours, one reservation system or access rules across the venues. Separate brand leadership from the local kitchen team

The announcement names Leo Robitschek in global bars and hospitality development, Josh Harnden as global culinary director and Lorenz Hoja as NoMad Singapore's director of culinary; Bernardo de la Garza is the hotel's general manager. Those appointments describe responsibility, not a confirmed Grill menu or a promise that every named leader will cook during service. When reservations open, look for the venue's local operating team, dietary information and current menu. Use biographies as context, not as a substitute for the dining facts a guest needs. What a cautious diner can decide

A couple is considering a year-end celebration. Their watchlist has four blank fields: confirmed date, dinner menu, estimated all-in spend and cancellation terms. They do not fill the blanks from an overseas NoMad property. This is a planning tool, not a review or first-hand visit.

You need dietary or accessibility details: Ask the venue after its Singapore contact channel opens. A social post offers prepayment now: Verify it against Hilton or NoMad's official Singapore channel.

Watch the official opening channels

1. Save the official Singapore opening page
2. Wait for a firm opening date
3. Check the live local menu
4. Confirm booking and cancellation terms
5. Ask about dietary and accessibility needs
6. Calculate the all-in group spend

What not to claim before opening

- Turning "late 2026" into a date
- Importing overseas menu prices
- Writing a review before visiting
- Paying through an unverified message
- Calling the venue good value without prices
