

OCBC Passbook Savings Promotion: 1.50% Interest Till 31 May

Description

OCBC Passbook Savings promotion is a fresh-funds offer for savers who can set aside a sizeable sum for several months. OCBC's official page states that customers can enjoy 1.50% interest a year when they deposit at least S$50,000 in fresh funds into an eligible savings account and maintain the deposit for five months, or 153 days, without withdrawals.

The promotion is valid till 31 May 2026, and the eligible fresh-funds range shown on the page is S$50,000 to S$3,000,000. OCBC breaks the 1.50% into 1.45% bonus interest and 0.05% base interest, and notes that deposits are insured up to S$100,000 by SDIC.

Main Terms

The promotion requires fresh funds and no withdrawals during the earmark period. That makes liquidity the main decision. If the money may be needed for housing, medical, education or business cash flow within the next few months, the headline rate should not be the only consideration.

The base account rate shown is 0.05% a year, with the bonus interest making up the promotional 1.50% a year total. Read the terms before depositing because bank promotions often depend on registration steps, eligible account types and fresh-funds definitions.

Who Should Look At It

OCBC savings-account page imagery supports the bank-product context.

This deal is most relevant for savers who already have idle cash and want a short, defined promotional period rather than market risk. It may suit conservative cash allocation, but it is not a replacement for emergency liquidity if the deposit would leave you short.

Before moving funds, compare the effective return against fixed deposits, Treasury bills, Singapore Savings Bonds and other bank promotions available at the same time. The right choice depends on access, tenure, minimum amount and how certain you are that you will not need the cash before the earmark ends.
