

OH! Golden Mile: 13th Art Walk at Golden Mile Tower, 17 to 31 January 2027

Description

default watermark

OH! Golden Mile, the 13th edition of OH! Open Houseâ??s flagship Art Walk, runs from 17 to 31 January 2027 at Golden Mile Tower. Site-specific artworks across its corridors, offices, shopfronts and carpark levels explore the architectural ambitions behind the Golden Mile precinct and the communities that have made it their own.

Golden Mile Tower, the setting for OH! Golden Mile. Image: Kendell Dickinson via OH! Open House

Why Golden Mile Tower

Built in 1973 as part of Singaporeâ??s early urban renewal, Golden Mile Tower brought the Golden Theatre, shops, offices and entertainment spaces into one development. Cross-border bus services between Singapore and Thailand began stopping there from the 1970s, drawing Thai workers, businesses and visitors and giving the area its name, â??Little Thailandâ?•. With neighbouring Golden Mile Complex being redeveloped and the Towerâ??s own future uncertain, the Art Walk asks who and what is being left behind.

default watermark

Built in 1973, the Tower has taken on a life of its own. Image: OH! Open House

Independent shops line the Towerâ??s corridors. Image: OH! Open House

Artworks to look out for

- Zarch Collaboratives: works by Anthony Poon and Han Sai Por shown alongside architectural drawings of the Tower.
- Randy Chan: the backrooms of the former Golden Theatre turned into an infinite corridor.
- Marcos Kueh: a textile installation with motifs from tenantsâ?? shop signboards and religious inscriptions on doors.
- Torlarp Larpjaroensook: a spacecraft-like installation made from old domestic objects, drawing on memories of his migrant grandmother.

- Michael Cu Fua: a work about the memories objects gather as they pass through different hands.
- Yok & Sheryo: a playful shrine installation at Boran Gallery on spirituality, wealth and consumer culture.
- GERAS: fabric installations shaped by Tower workers who use the carpark rest area.
- Naraphat Sakarthornsap: a large welcome sign made of living grass on the Level 6 carpark.

The Towerâ??s spiral staircase. Image: Kendell Dickinson via OH! Open House

Collectibles in one of the Towerâ??s independent shops. Image: OH! Open House

â??Little Thailandâ?• is not something the original planners intended, said OH! Open House executive director Alan Oei: the identity emerged because people found room to make the place their own. Co-curators Deborah Lim and Daniel Chong frame the show around spaces in flux and around how, and whom, we choose to remember.

Vintage signs and figures inside the Tower. Image: OH! Open House

Tickets and the Filmhouse bundle

- General admission: S$40 with a donation, and eligible for SG Culture Pass credits.
- OH! Golden Mile x Filmhouse bundle: S$68, pairing the Art Walk with a film screening inspired by the Golden Theatre (1973 to 2014) on 23 or 30 January 2027. The film is chosen by community vote and announced closer to the date.
- Tickets: via bit.ly/ohgoldenmile.

The carpark levels host some of the Art Walkâ??s installations. Image: OH! Open House

OH! has staged Art Walks since 2009 in neighbourhoods including Katongâ??Joo Chiat, Kampong Gelam, Emerald Hill, Tiong Bahru and Moonstone Lane. For more to do around town, see our things to do this weekend, the SAM Lost & Found exhibition and our report on Singapore Writers Festival 2026.

Press release and images courtesy of OH! Open House, via SPRG.

Date Created
29/11/2026
Author
priya