Scootâ??s Everywhere Sale closes at 11.59pm on Sunday 20 September 2026, with one-way fares from Singapore still listed from S$79, taxes included, on flyscoot.com and the Scoot app. Seats at the headline price are limited, and the board is already thinner than when the sale opened on 15 September.

The fine print that matters this weekend is the travel calendar. No listed route on Scootâ??s sale board carries promo dates from 18 to 25 December 2026. Christmas week is a blackout across the published windows.

Sample fares still on the board

Headline Economy Basic one-ways from Singapore include Malacca from S$79, Kuala Lumpur and Penang from S$82, Phuket from S$92, Bali from S$105, Taipei from S$130, Perth from S$165, Seoul from S$169, Osaka from S$210, Tokyo Haneda and Melbourne from S$225, Sydney from S$240, and Athens from S$315. Twenty routes also list a ScootPlus fare that already includes a larger cabin bag, 30kg checked bag and a meal.

Windows that close before the year-end rush

Each destination carries its own promo travel periods between 29 September 2026 and 31 August 2027. Malaysia and Thailand windows close around 19 November, before the year-end school holidays start on 21 November. Seoul opens from 4 January 2027, Osaka from 11 January, and Tokyo Narita from 18 January. Tokyo Haneda still lists a 29 September to 15 November 2026 window.

What Economy Basic covers

Sale prices are Economy Basic: 10kg cabin bag in up to two pieces, no checked bag, no meal, and seat selection for a fee. Payment processing fees are not included. Bookings are not refundable except under Scootâ??s Conditions of Carriage.

Book on flyscoot.com or the Scoot app before 11.59pm Singapore time on Sunday 20 September 2026.
