The Singapore T100 Triathlon returns to Marina Bay on 10 and 11 April 2027, and entries are open. A solo place in the full 100km race is listed at S$722 until 23 February 2027, while the shorter Sprint Triathlon, which the organiser pitches at newcomers, is listed at S$218. Booking fees may apply on top. There are duathlons for anyone who would rather not swim, and relay teams of two or three for the longer races.

The races and the prices

The 100km race is the same course the professionals take on in the T100 World Tour: a 2km swim, an 80km ride and an 18km run. The Sprint is a 750m swim, a 20km ride and a 5km run.

These are the current price tiers on the registration site. Prices step up as each tier closes, and booking fees may apply.

- 100km Triathlon, individual: S$722 until 23 February 2027, then S$796
- 100km Triathlon, team relay: S$869 a team until 24 March 2027
- Sprint Triathlon, individual: S$218
- Sprint Triathlon, team relay: S$250 a team
- Long Duathlon, run-bike-run with a 64km ride: S$376
- Standard Duathlon, run-bike-run with a 32km ride: S$302
- Standard Duathlon, team relay: S$355 a team

The entry list puts the Sprint on Saturday 10 April and the 100km and duathlons on Sunday 11 April. Start times, race pack collection times and the 2027 courses are still to be confirmed. A Youth Aquathlon, a 400m swim and 3km run in Marina Bay, is marked as coming soon.

Who can enter

The swim is where the entry standard sits. For 2027, triathletes have to tick a box at registration declaring at least two open-water swim races or events since 1 January 2025. On race day, 100km swimmers must finish the 2km in under 1 hour 20 minutes, which is 4 minutes per 100m, or they are taken off the course. Wetsuits are banned because Marina Bay is warm, typically 25 to 28Â°C.

There are no prerequisites for the duathlons, which makes them the easiest way in if open water is the thing holding you back. The organiser pitches the Sprint as the race where most athletes first dip their toes into triathlon.

Where it happens

The triathlon starts at Helix Bridge and the duathlon at the F1 Pit Building, which is also home to the race expo. Expect a reservoir swim, an undulating bike course on closed city roads and a flat run. On previous yearsâ?? course, the 100km bike was five laps starting and finishing on the Grand Prix track, and the 18km run was two laps past Marina Bay Sands, Gardens by the Bay and Marina Barrage.

Race packs are collected at the expo in the two days before the event, and bikes have to be racked the day before your race.
