Sushiro says on its Instagram that its Great World outlet opens on Tuesday 24 November, with a rotating 1-for-1 sushi plate and S$6++ alcoholic drinks from then until 7 December. Great World lists the promotion as available while stocks last.

The new restaurant sits on the first floor of Great World at 1 Kim Seng Promenade, units #01-112/113/114. It is a Digiro concept store, the second in Singapore after Mandai, so the conveyor belt here is a screen rather than a moving track of plates.

The 1-for-1 plate, date by date

Each 1-for-1 runs for two or three days before the next plate takes over. Sushiro lists this run on its Instagram, with the opening price and the usual price for each plate:

- 24 to 26 November: Bluefin Fatty Tuna, S$5.20++ (usually S$10.40++)
- 27 to 28 November: Big Cut Fresh Tasmanian Salmon, S$3.20++ (usually S$6.40++)
- 29 to 30 November: Salmon Roe Wrap, S$4.20++ (usually S$8.40++)
- 1 to 3 December: Shio Koji Big Red Shrimp, S$3.20++ (usually S$6.40++)
- 4 to 5 December: Medium Fatty Tuna, S$4.20++ (usually S$8.40++)
- 6 to 7 December: Jumbo Scallop, S$5.20++ (usually S$10.40++)

The bluefin fatty tuna in the first three days and the jumbo scallop at the very end are the two dearest plates in the run, so those are the dates to aim for if you are choosing one visit. If salmon is what you order every time anyway, 27 or 28 November is the cheaper trip.

Sushiro says alcoholic drinks are S$6++ each for the full two weeks.

Opening day only

On 24 November itself, Sushiro says a bill of S$50 or more earns one spin of a sure-win prize wheel, with prizes ranging from S$10 return vouchers to limited-edition merchandise. Terms and conditions apply.

How Digiro works

Instead of plates going round on a belt, a touchscreen panel at the table shows animated sushi plates moving across a digital conveyor. You tap a plate to order it, and the same screen doubles as the menu. Ordering also fills up a progress bar that unlocks mini games featuring Sushiroâ??s Dakkosushi characters, with a chance to win Dakkosushi merchandise.

If you have been to the Mandai outlet at Mandai Wildlife East, it is the same idea. If you like watching real plates go past before you commit, the screens are the trade-off.

Getting a seat

Reservations go through the Sushiro Singapore app. With a 1-for-1 on from the first day, booking ahead for a weekend dinner is the sensible move.

Great World is also not the last new Sushiro this year. Funan, also a Digiro concept store, is slated for early December at #02-16.
