More than 50 Russian samovars

The centrepiece is the TWG Tea Museum. It holds more than 170 antique tea wares and over 50 antique Russian samovars, the urns once used to keep water hot for tea, dating from the 17th to the 20th centuries. TWG Tea collected the pieces from around the world over the past 15 years.

The whole space sits under a 23-foot-high ceiling.

What you can buy

TWG Tea runs the gallery as two things at once: a tea boutique and a takeaway tea counter. That means you can buy tea to take home, or pick up a cup to drink on the way to your gate. It is not one of the brandâ??s sit-down tea salons.

TWG Tea elsewhere at Changi

The gallery is the sixth TWG Tea outlet in Changiâ??s transit areas. If your flight leaves from another terminal, these are the others:

- Terminal 1, Departure/Transit Lounge West, #02-14: open 24 hours
- Terminal 2, Departure/Transit Lounge South, #02-216: 6am to 1am
- Terminal 3, Departure/Transit Lounge South, #02-26: open 24 hours
- Terminal 3 kiosk, Departure/Transit Lounge North, #02-K12: 6am to 1am
- Terminal 4, Departure/Transit Lounge South, #02-29: 6am to 1am
