The A5 Wagyu Set is listed for Foodie San members only. The same visit needs a S$40 nett minimum. Prices take a 10 per cent service charge and prevailing GST. The campaign footer says the offer is not valid with other promotions or discounts. No coupon code is required.

What the A5 Wagyu Set costs after ++

At half price the A5 Wagyu Set is S$12.95 on the menu. With the ++ line, that is about S$15.53 payable once the 10 per cent service charge and 9 per cent GST are applied. The undiscounted A5 Wagyu Set at S$25.90 would be about S$31.05 payable. The saving on the A5 Wagyu Set alone is about S$15.52.

The campaign artwork shows Miyazaki A5 wagyu on a plate with rice and sides. Copy sourced from Yakiniku Like describes A5 Miyazaki wagyu brisket served with rice, soup and a choice of salad or kimchi. The poster itself does not reprint the side list.

The S$40 nett minimum

The S$40 nett minimum is the line that changes the bill. The campaign does not say whether the discounted A5 Wagyu Set counts toward that floor.

Ordering the A5 Wagyu Set alone at S$12.95 does not clear S$40. Other menu items are needed on the same receipt.

If nett is the amount after service charge and GST, about S$33.36 of menu prices is enough to reach S$40 payable. If nett is menu prices before ++, the table needs S$40 of listed items. The safer figure is at least S$40 of menu-priced food before the half-price A5 Wagyu Set is assumed to apply.

Foodie San and Junction 8

Foodie San membership is handled through the Foodie San mobile app.

The Membersâ?? Ni Ku poster checked on Wednesday (Sep 2) does not print an outlet-by-outlet list. Yakiniku Like operates in several Singapore malls. The Junction 8 directory lists the brand at #01-40 Junction 8, near Bishan MRT.

A mall photograph of that outletâ??s entrance queue board, checked on Wednesday (Sep 2), shows walk-ins only, seats assigned first-come-first-served, and a 50-minute dining limit. Those house rules are on the Junction 8 board, not on the campaign poster.
